ALINE THOMPSON

A pretty and simple wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents Wednesday evening, February the first, when Miss Ethel Barnes, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Barnes, was united in matrimony to George Noack, the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Tatum officiating.

The ceremony was followed by a wedding supper.

Among the guests attending the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Munkler, Mr. and Mrs. William Goods and family, Mr. and Mrs. Voyle Smith, Mrs. L. M. Barnes, Mrs. Martha Noack, Miss L. Barrett and daughter Eva, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Barnes, Martha Noack, John and Paul Noack, John, Earl and Roy and Granville Barnes.

The woman's social circle of the Congregational church met Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Joseph Schindler on Chemeketa street.

At a short business session the members discussed and made plans for the new year.

Later a social chat and refreshments were enjoyed.

Mrs. Laura McAdams president of the Woman's Relief Corps entertained a number of friends with a dinner on the occasion of her birthday anniversary.

Covers were placed for six.

The Quince Jours club girls were delightfully entertained on Monday afternoon at the home of Miss Alice Judd on Twenty-second street.

Games and music were enjoyed, after which the hostess served dainty refreshments.

A very pretty home wedding was recently solemnized when Obed Frogley and Miss Edna Hoffman were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents in Keizer Bottom, January 30.

At 5:00 p. m. to the beautiful strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march played upon a Victrola, the bridal couple entered the room where the ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. T. Porter, of the First Christian church, in the presence of about fifty invited guests.

The groom was dressed in the conventional black and the bride wore a gown of delicate blue silk messaline with all over shadow lace and white fur trimmings and carried a beautiful bouquet of white carnations and lilies of the valley.

The young couple stood under an arch of fern and Oregon grape interwoven with sprigs of dusty miller, from which hung a bell of paper white narcissus. The rooms were very tastefully and beautifully decorated with white narcissus and ferns.

The impressive and beautiful ring ceremony was used.

Following the ceremony dainty refreshments were served by Johnnie Jones, after which the newly weds departed in an auto for the capital city from whence they left on a train for parts unknown. They will be at home to their many friends after February 15th.

Mr. and Mrs. Obed Frogley are well known in the Capital City. Mr. Frogley is a prosperous farmer of Keizer Bottom and is very prominent in the business and social circles of the community. The bride is a very popular among the younger set of the city and community where she lives. She is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hoffman. The father of the bride is a well to do and prominent horticulturist and farmer of Keizer Bottom about five miles north of the Capital City.

My eyesight would leave me and everything I ate upset my stomach. I was very nervous and if I would start to sleep I would have to stop and lie down before I could finish. I was looking over the paper one day and read of a woman who felt as I did and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I took it too. Now I am proud to tell you I am feeling fine and have given birth to a boy baby. He is my 'Pinkham' baby. I keep a bottle of Compound in my house always."

THE FORTUNE HUNTER IS "LOCAL TALENT" SHOW IN NAME ONLY

Salem Cast Filled Parts With Grace and Ease of Professionals Last Night

The largest audience of the season packed itself into the Grand last evening to see the opening performance of "The Fortune Hunter." Every seat was taken and extra chairs were placed in the aisles to take care of the overflow. What the audience saw was beyond all doubt the best local talent play that has yet been given in Salem.

The show bills said "The Fortune Hunter" would be presented by an "amateur" cast and because the people of Salem knew the members of the cast by their first names they went expecting to witness an amateur production. It may be said, however, that the amateur part as the Salem talent fairly arose above itself for the occasion. Each character was fitted for the part played and each played the part.

James Mott, as Nat Duncan, the fortune hunter, is too well known to Salem theatre-goers to need introduction and Salem people have grown to expect finished work from him as a matter of course. His rendition of the part of the failure-in-life in the first act was a different role to handle and the contrast with the man confident and alert in business in the last act was a breach that would prove the undoing of any but a professional actor. All of the small details of the long, hard role were worked out with painstaking care and Mr. Mott "put it over" with ease and finish.

Aline Thompson, as Betty Graham, the village druggist's daughter, was the slovenly drudge about the dusty drug store in the first act and then she went to the boarding school in the city and the livelyman's son said it all in "Gosh, how'd you do it?" Miss Thompson's friends also were surprised at the success with which she carried out the part of the leading lady through all of the difficult scenes from working girl to the young lady of the finishing school and from lady to pathos with a touch of the amateurishness that usually prepares the audience at the local talent show to treat the subject in the most kindly manner. In fact there were no apologies of any kind to be made for the work of any of the members of the cast and Director Mott is to be congratulated upon his selection of the cast and Salem for possessing it.

Rev. R. E. Fischer filled the part of the simple, kindly old druggist whose mind ran to inventions more than to business and the business man himself in the first act. The part of the fortune hunter, Mr. Fischer not only filled the part but he was the part and no touch of pathos was overdone as is generally the case in the amateur production. The tone, gesture and manner of Mr. Fischer left no room for improvement and he was easily one of the stars of the cast.

Walter A. Denton, the rising young financier, carried out the part of the keen, shrewd, business man who at last showed a streak of humanity, to a perfection. He said he liked to work and his acting showed that he had put a lot of work into his lines to polish them off for presentation.

Miss Hazel Erickson, as the Banker Lockwood's daughter, sustained a difficult part with ease and grace and her change of heart in the last act was a result of excellent acting that showed considerable promise for the young woman.

"Larry" Reber, the village constable, with his moving picture make-up, carried through a role of humor in a manner that never failed to put over a laugh at the proper time. He was inflicted with a wife and the resultant matrimonial troubles but his sound advice failed to make any effect upon the others and love scenes were thick in the last act in spite of the gloomy forebodings of the officer.

Charles Reynolds, as Roland Barnett, the bank clerk, was the heavy villain. If there is any villain in the play, and he carried off the village heiress with the true villain's smirk and smile. Carl Gabrielson, as Tracy Tanner, and Miss Marjorie Marvin, as Angie, his sweet heart, closed through their love scenes.

Cottolene

"The Natural Shortening"

Until Cottolene was offered, people thought—and rightly—that most fried foods were greasy, indigestible and unhealthful. But Cottolene was quickly found to be a frying aid which actually made foods better tasting and better to eat.

None of the good flavor of the food is allowed to escape; the cooking process is rightly finished and the digestibility of the food is retained along with tempting taste.

It is this natural quality of Cottolene which also makes it so superior for pies, pastry, biscuits, cakes and all shortened foods.

Try Cottolene—order a small pail from your grocer. Then arrange with him for a regular supply.

SILENT PIANOS

Have you a piano in your home that is very seldom used?

Why not exchange it for a player piano now when you can at such a startling reduction and easy terms. The great reduction in price is made possible by the disappearance of C. F. Hall and the forced closing of the Valley Music House. See ad on page 3.

BE CAREFUL IN USING SOAP ON YOUR HAIR

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mottified coconut oil, for it is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats the most expensive soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

COURT HOUSE NEWS

Claud O. Ross was found guilty by the jury in a verdict returned at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in department No. 1 of the circuit court. The case went to the jury at 1:30. Ross was charged with criminal assault upon Ada L. Sullivan, of Mill City, who was a girl of 16 years of age in July, 1913, when the crime was committed. Ross is a three time loser and is now serving his third sentence in the pen on a charge of forgery. He served terms for obtaining money under false pretenses and for larceny. The penalty is three to 20 years but as Ross is made a habitual criminal by reason of his three former terms he will be given a flat sentence of not less than three years or more than 20 years by Judge Kelly.

The jury in the case of J. C. Gregory against the Oregon Fruit Juice company was selected this morning in the circuit court when the case of the state against G. H. Tracy, charged with selling a short cord of wood, was continued on account of the illness of a state witness until the next term.

The $40,000 Stool damage case against the Southern Pacific will probably be concluded next week. Three of the jurors who heard the evidence were taken ill and are now convalescing and it is expected that they will be able to hear the arguments next week. S. M. Kauthorn, G. E. Berringer and Perry Master were the jurors who were excused on account of illness.

The county court at its present session today dismissed the petition of William Whitlock and others for a road in road district No. 11 on account of an error in the description. The proposed road linked 20 rods of connecting with another county road. Another petition will be prepared.

The recommendation of the Salem Fruit Union for L. M. Gilbert as county fruit inspector was received but no action has been taken on the petition by the county court. The indemnity claim of the Alluvial Farm company for $50 for diseased cattle was ordered paid.

THE REFORM CANDIDATE

"The Reform Candidate" is running for mayor against the political machine headed by "Boss" Hoke, the latter providing a stellar role for the return to the film of widely beloved Maclay Arbuckle. The "reformer" proves crooked however, and tries to buy off the boss for $15,000. The swift retaliation of the ironshod politician and then the softening influence of the briber's admirable wife, whom Hoke has always worshipped from afar, provide surprises and excitements which make "The Reform Candidate" a sterling piece of drama. This Melas Pictures production released on the Paramount program at the Ye Liberty theatre today and tomorrow.

Charles Reynolds, as Roland Barnett, the bank clerk, was the heavy villain. If there is any villain in the play, and he carried off the village heiress with the true villain's smirk and smile. Carl Gabrielson, as Tracy Tanner, and Miss Marjorie Marvin, as Angie, his sweet heart, closed through their love scenes.

Salem Resident Finds Alaskan Boots of Good Use In Oregon Snow

E. Cooke Patton would find success as a village tailor, if the bottom ever drops out of the post card business and Wilson Howard, as "Hi," the oldest inhabitant added a touch of the true antique when the two gossips viewed with alarm the arrival of the young man from the city.

Dr. W. S. Mott was the Banker Lockwood, for the evening and his success in shaving notes was only equalled by his skill as a regular surgeon. His unfortunate affliction of blinking his eye had given him the nickname of "Blinking Eye" Lockwood and by misunderstanding the wink the fortune hunter prepared a glass of soda with a stick in it that warmed the cockles of the banker's heart and won an invitation to the banker's home.

Sperry, the drummer, was depicted by Herman Heiring and Max O. Buren, Ralph Moores, Miller McGilchrist, Paul Hendricks and Perry Reigleman as New York acquaintances of the fortune hunter, and his friend carried out their parts as a decided contrast to the sleepy village characters.

The theatre was packed full all of the seats sold and the aisles filled up and from the moment George Rodgers began his curtain speech the audience began to be entertained and all departed with the thought that they had spent an evening in finding out some of the unexpected talents of the local people. The play will be repeated tonight and its excellence deserves another packed house.
